It was also resolved that this court send a delegation to the Constitutional Convention to be held in Chicago, Ill., August 1, 1893.

In the evening a meeting was held in the old courthouse, when the resolutions were read and adopted.

Tuesday evening the silver question was brought up, the silver question in the old courthouse.

Said to Be Dying.

"Scotchman" Maloney is said to be dying at his home in Oakland. Scotchman has not been himself since his return from the East, and, while he has no pronounced disease, apparently he has been suffering from one of the more noted characters in the State, and he always taken an active interest in politics. He always announced himself as a Democrat, and he was a member of the Southern Pacific, though what duties were no one knew but Scotchman himself. He was also a great admirer of Shakespeare, and could quote freely from the plays. He was an centric individual, but had many war friends, and will be missed by political friends from one end of the State to the other.

Third Street Tunnel Meeting.

An informal meeting of people interested in the Third street tunnel project was held yesterday afternoon at the City Hall. It was concluded in the tax levied to raise it above the $1 limit prescribed by law. Some were in favor of doing the work and fixing an assessment district for it. Others thought advisable that it should be so done that for it in two or three annual installments. No formal action was taken.

Fell Down the Stairs.

William Carson was taken to the police station early yesterday morning for medical treatment. He had been walking upstairs at some point on the Third street and had fallen down the stairs and sustained a head wound, which metalic Congress to be held in Chicago August 1. During the morning hours a dozen persons interested met at the courthouse, when $100 was raised to defray the cost of traveling expenses. The following resolutions were adopted. Judge Utley being selected as the delegate referred to:

"Resolved, that the sense of this court be that the interests of the county demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver."

It was also resolved that this county be united to the Bi-metallic Congress to be held in Chicago, Ill., August 1, 1893.

In the evening a meeting was held at the court house, when the resolutions were read and adopted.

Tuesday evening Congressman Cannon will speak on the silver question at the old Courthouse.

TO HOLD OFFICE.

Recorder Rossiter Will Not Be Ousted.

The Pasadena Official's Appointment Was Valid.

Other Creditors of the City Bank File a Petition.

They Want the Estate of That Institution Surrendered for Their Benefit and Satisfaction—General Court Notes.

In the case of the People vs. J. G. Rossiter, Judge Shaw yesterday rendered an opinion ordering the findings and judgment for the defendant. The action was begun to determine the right of Rossiter to hold the office of Recorder of the city of Pasadena. According to the cause set up by the defense it appears that Rossiter, soon after his election to the office named, started in to enforce rigorously the liquor ordinances of the Crown City, much to the dismay of those who incidentally furnished liquors with other refreshments of more solid form. The latter, after suffering from the fines imposed for a while, determined to test the legality of the Recorder's action, and commenced suit to oust him from office.

AGAINST THE CITY BANK.
A petition was yesterday filed with the County Clerk by Hickey & Kellam, A. M. Shields, Clara Dosh, Maeder & Priester and J. H. Levering, asking that an order of court be issued to the City Bank requiring that it should not be adjudged an insolvent debtor and surrender its estate for the benefit of the creditors. The petitioners claimed that the bank is indebted to them in the sum of $1284.82.

Court Notes.
The plaintiff in the case of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank vs. the Pacific Railway Company et al., was yesterday granted until August 6 in which to serve and file notice of intention to move for a new trial by Judge Van Dyke.

The divorce case of Begon vs. Begon was yesterday ordered continued to July 29 for trial in Department Four. Emma L. Guerin was yesterday granted a divorce from her husband, P. F. Guerin, on the grounds of desertion and failure to provide.

The plaintiff in the case of Walker vs. Cohn was allowed to withdraw $121.20 deposited as surety, yesterday, by Judge Shaw.

A complaint has been filed by the Los Angeles National Bank in an action against J. P. Crank and A. Bridget to obtain a lien on certain corporate bonds furnished as security on a promissory note for $20,704.70.

D. W. Colby, accused of destroying timber on government lands, was brought before the United States Commissioner yesterday for examination. The evidence not appearing to sustain the charge, the case was dismissed.

Bernard Alchichino, a sheep herder, was also brought in on a warrant charging him with pasturing his flocks on public lands. The commissioner fixed Alchichino's bail at $250, and ordered that he be examined July 29.

New Suits.
Preliminary papers in the following new suits were filed with the County Clerk yesterday:
Abbot Kinney et al. vs. the Santa Fe and Santa Monica Railway Company; suit on conveyance and damages of $1000.
W. H. Harrelson vs. M. S. G. Tomich et al.; suit on foreclosure of mortgage for $16,500 and interest.
W. H. Perry Lumber Company vs. Lizzie M. Hambricht et al.; suit on lien.
Mary Ann Johnson vs. F. A. Johnson et al.; suit for an injunction to restrain appropriation of waters of Tejonja River.
George Schultz vs. Mrs. Jani Dorsey; suit for $421.65 due for services rendered.
Garay vs. Dole; undertaking on appointment of receiver.
Petition of John E. Blockman to be declared an insolvent debtor, with total liabilities of $25,450.00.
Henry Robinson vs. Columbia Loan and Building Association; suit to quiet title.
James E. Gordon vs. Hugs Schroeder et al.; suit for $1500 with interest, due for rent.

Co. E of Santa Paula.
A new company, E. of the National Guard of California, has been organized at Santa Paula, with 100 members enrolled. The company was mustered in last evening, a large contingent of Los Angeles officers of the militia in attendance, to assist in the ceremony. The company was mustered in by Capt. A. T. Black. Among the officers who went up from Los Angeles were Col. W. G. Schrieber, Lieut. Col. L. B. Butler, assistant adjutant-general; Maj. M. L. Starin, Capt. Henry Steere, Lieut. H. D. Alfonso.

A SPANISH PHILANTHROPIST.

Donna Concepcion Arnel de Carasco, a Woman of Commanding Mind.
(St. Louis Post-Dispatch.) The French translation of a valuable contribution to criminal anthropology, entitled, "Manual for Prison Visitors," attracts attention in a special way just now to Donna Concepcion Arnel de Carasco, one of the most remarkable women of the present time. She is the daughter of a Spaniard, and was born in Ferrol, in Galicia, in 1820. She has been a philanthropist all her life, but it is to penitentiary science that Donna Arnel has devoted her greatest energies and personal service. For a long time she worked in the prison laboriously and persistently, but in silence, at least as far as the public were concerned. But of late she has given the results of her labors to the world.

The papers which she read before the Prison Congress of Rome and Stockholm will never be forgotten, and the report on "Correctible Criminals," which she wrote for the Congress of St. Petersburg in 1890, is considered the most marvelous piece of work that ever came from the pen of woman. But not a single chapter of her last work, "Manual for Prison Visitors," can be read without conveying to the reader a clear idea of this noble woman's character, her breadth of view, the calm justice of her judgment, her profound knowledge of human nature, and, above all, her abounding sympathy with suffering mankind, a quality not degenerating into sentimentality, but that which is born of an intense and ever-present realization of the sacredness of human life and the deep mystery of individual destiny.

COWARDLY ASSAULT.

A Man Badly Cut Last Night With Brass Knuckles.

A brutal and cowardly affray took place on Main street, near First, at about 8:30 o'clock last night, in which Al Johnson, a plasterer, was terribly hurt by a cut on the forehead, inflicted by Bernard Radican, another plasterer. The usual evening crowd which congregates on the west side of Main street, just south of First, was larger than ever, because of the Saturday night hangers on; yet almost unnoticed by them the affair took place.

Radican and a Graft Army man named Alexander had been together earlier in the evening, and the former had made some disrespectful remarks about the G.A.R. button which Alexander wore.

The matter was finally settled temporarily, but soon afterward Radican, Alexander and Johnson all chanced to be together. The G.A.R. question was raised again, and a little quarrel ensued. Radican, instead of hitting Alexander, struck Johnson on the head. Stunned by the force of the blow, Johnson fell to the sidewalk, where he lay for several minutes, while a pool of blood collected about him.

The patrol wagon was soon at the scene of the battery. The wounded man was lifted onto a stretcher and removed to the receiving hospital. A gash nearly half an inch in depth was found upon his forehead. Dr. Almsworth was called, and sewed up the wound.

Immediately after completing the dastardly work, the assailant escaped in the crowd, but was traced as far as Mott alley. Officers and detectives were soon on his trail, and at a late hour he was captured.

From the nature of the wound it was at first thought that Johnson was merely stunned by the blow, and that in falling he struck his head in such a way as to cause the cut.

Later developments, however, led to the belief that the hand that did the striking was not bare, but was encased in brass knuckles.

BARLEY BURNED.

Fire Along the Route of the Outfall Sewer Yesterday.

Some of the sewer hands, it is stated, are responsible for a fire which occurred yesterday on the line of section 5 of the outfall sewer, in which a large stack of unthreshed barley belonging to William Coleman was destroyed. The stack was one of three stacks on a farm of sixty acres, and represented the harvest from about twenty acres of land. It is said that it contained about five hundred sacks of barley. The fire was carried to the stack along the stubble, a distance of twenty rods. The stubble is very dry just now, and was ignited doubtless through carelessness of some of the sewer hands, and reached the stack before it was discovered. The stack was insured in the Oakland Home Insurance Company for $900, which will cover the loss.

University Bank Assessment.

Among the petitions which have been filed to be presented at the proper time to the Board of Equalization is one from President R. M. Widney of the University Bank. In it he claims that the money in that bank at noon on Monday, March 6 last, as counted by the deputy assessor, was only $2700. He therefore asks that the assessment of $27,000 appearing against him be reduced to $2700. A statement showing the assessable money in the bank to be $2700 was shown to the City Assessor some time ago.

A representative of the bank was called before the Assessor and under oath questioned in reference to the bank's funds. After such questioning the assessment against the bank was raised to $27,000.

Arrivals at the County Jail.

Nine new arrivals were registered yesterday at the County Jail. George H. Everett of Pomona was one of them. The charge of adultery was placed on the book against his name. John Carriso of Wilmington, and T. Orndoff of this city were both booked for insanity. "John Doe" was lodged for cutting timber on the United States reservation.

Cleveland's is the strongest of all pure cream of tartar baking powders, yet its great merit is not its strength, but the fact that it is pure, wholesome and sure.

During the ten years that I have been located in Los Angeles I have treated and cured over 4000 people who were afflicted with nearly every form of the various diseases that human flesh is heir to. Fully 92 out of every 100 that I have cured were wrecks that could not find relief in the other systems of medicine as practiced in Europe and America. Over 400 were given up by doctors and friends to die. Among the list of diseases I have cured are Piles, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, twenty-five forms of Consumption, Asthma, Bright's Disease, Blindness, Insanity, twelve forms of Heart Disease, Cancer, Tumors, Skin and Blood Diseases of every description.

In my system of medicine there are over 400 different diseases. I cure 35 of them. I use over 300 kinds of herbs (no poisons), which I attempt direct, and which have been used in China 3000 years. I locate and describe all diseases by feeling the pulse, and in five minutes time. Consultation and examination free.

HON. J. S. CLARKSON

Arrival of the Distinguished Visitor.

Met by a Delegation of Former Iowans.

Interesting Talk on Silver and the Tariff.

Probable Action of Congress at the Coming Session—Public Reception at the Rooms of the Union League.

Hon. James S. Clarkson, First Assistant Postmaster-General under the Harrison administration, arrived from Santa Barbara at the Arcade depot at 1:30 p.m. yesterday. Mr. Clarkson was expected on the overland from San Francisco, which is due at 12:30 p.m., and a delegation of Iowans were at the station to meet him. The conductor of the Pullman informed the waiting gentlemen that Mr. Clarkson and party had left San Francisco a day earlier and taken a run to Santa Barbara, from which place he would arrive an hour later. The delegation, consisting of Col. A. H. Neidig, Maj. J. A. Donnell, F. J. Cressley, Hon. B. F. Allen, C. L. Bryan, S. V. Landt, Police Commissioner Tufts and John Beckwith, put in the time awaiting the arrival of the train and the first greetings were given to the Westminister, where they registered as J. S. Clarkson, Iowa; Isaac Trumbo, San Francisco; C. F. Clarkson, Des Moines; and William E. Hills, New York.

Mr. Clarkson, although known as the "headman," is a gentleman of mild demeanor and pleasant address. He is somewhat short and stout, and has a strong inclination to the double chin so prevalent among public men of the present day. He has light eyes, and hair of a darker shade, and his complexion denotes that of a person in perfect health, and who knows how to enjoy the good things in life. Mr. Clarkson was attired in a medium gray business suit and wore a black felt derby hat of latest shape, and russet shoes. Col. Trumbo, who accompanies the party, is well known to Californians, being World's Fair commissioner, and as having been identified with Republican politics in this State for a number of years. The other two members consist of Mr. Clarkson's son and a college friend.

While lunch was being eaten several friends congregated in the Westminister lobby, and later paid their respects. Conspicuous among these were officers of the various Republican committees. This informal reception lasted about an hour, after which the party made preparations to tender some personal visits to friends in this city.

While Mr. Clarkson was waiting a Times reporter was admitted to his room. After a cordial shake of the hand the object of the visit was stated.

In reply to the question as to what Congress will do about the Sherman law, Mr. Clarkson answered: "No body knows exactly what will be accomplished, but many of us have ideas of what should be done. I am in favor of free coinage of American silver; that is the Iowa Republican doctrine. The silver question is one of great magnitude, and concerns the East as well as the West. It should be approached in a statesmanlike spirit—all demagoguery should be thrown aside and only the coolest, calmest deliberation be allowed, while the matter is under consideration. It is very evident that the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act is improbable, unless some satisfactory measure is substituted. President Cleveland may think that the House will pass an unconditional repealing act, but the Senate has it in its power to filibuster for months if the silver men so decide. I hardly think, however, that such obstreperous tactics will be engaged in. The question is too vital and overwhelming to allow unseemly wrangling. The Senate is composed of men who have too much regard for the interests of the country to do anything that would aggravate the present stringency. And the House, I think, will also take a statesmanlike view of the situation. In fact, there is already a great pressure being exerted to center upon some good plan of bimetalism, and it is possible that by the time Congress meets the silver question may not appear as big a scarecrow as it does now."

"What do you think will be the Democratic policy in regard to the tariff?" was next asked.

"Now there is a subject," answered Mr. Clarkson, becoming more animated, "that in my mind overshadows the silver question. All this depression in business circles and this stringency in money matters is more due to the uncertainty regarding the tariff policy of the administration than to the fear as to the fate of silver. It is a strange circumstance, that while we were never more prosperous as a whole people there is stagnation and failures in business everywhere. Our manufacturing industries are languishing, and every other industry seems to suffer from some malignant influence. The trouble is that the Democratic promise of free trade has not brought the good times every campaign orator on that side of the fence said it would. And if the mere promise of free trade, or, to use their own words, 'a reduction of the tariff,' can bring about such disaster, what would a realization of such action do? Yes, I think the Democrats will tinker with the tariff, but I doubt if they come anywhere near carrying out their original intention. There will be some reductions made, but any serious breaking down of barriers would be so self-evidently disastrous that the free traders will hardly dare to go too far. I have no doubt the Republicans, aided by the conservative Democratic element in Congress, will be strong enough to offset any radical movements on that line."

"What is your opinion as to the future of the Republican party?" was then asked.

"As to that there can be only one opinion. I have recently had abundant opportunity to observe things, and although this is purely a pleasure trip, it is the first time in a half-dozen years that I have been in position to indulge in a jaunt so extensive—and although, as I say, this is purely a pleasure trip, yet wherever I have been I saw such unmistakable signs of disaffection with the party in power that I believe, if an election was to be held today the Republican party would win hands down. The Republican party is the party of progress, not retrogression, and the American people have been going forward ever since this has been a nation, and there is no reason why they should begin a backward movement now. No, the Democrats with their policy of negation cannot hold the American people. Adverse circumstances may bring Republican defeat once in awhile, but ultimately our principles must be successful. No, the Republican party is more alive today than it ever was and the very next general election will evidence that fact. The West is the great hope of our party, and as that section of the United States grows more populous so much stronger grows the body of Republicanism. In fact, 'a civilization, following the law of nature, tends westward, so does the party of progress and enlightenment gather new recruits to its fold. The future of the Republican party is a question that needs no answer from me. What it has done in the past and what it can and will do are plain to anyone who takes the trouble to think.'"

Mr. Clarkson has been in California a sufficient length of time to appreciate our summer weather. He makes no secret of his preference for the coast climate over that of the Mississippi Valley. A steady heat of from two to three months, with frequent atmospheric disturbances is not to be compared with the calm and tranquility of a California summer. Mr. Clarkson intends to visit Pasadena and Riverside, among other points of interest, before turning his face toward home. The party will probably be located in this city until Wednesday or Thursday.

THE RECEPTION.

A Large Gathering at the Union League Rooms.

The reception at the Union League rooms last night to Hon. James S. Clarkson brought out one of the old-time campaign crowds. The hall was beautifully decorated with flags, bunting, palms and potted plants. The large oil paintings of Harrison and Morton looked down from their accustomed places on the side walls, while over the speaker's platform was the picture of James G. Blaine. Palms and flags, most tastefully arranged, formed a fitting frame for the shadow of the departed statesman. In the rear of the hall, near the entrance, was the inviting word, "Welcome."

Long before the time set for the beginning of the reception members of the club and other Republicans from this city and adjacent country filled the ante-rooms. The hall itself contained a number, and when the guest of the evening arrived everybody filed in and filled it to the utmost. It is estimated that there were over six hundred present.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock Mr. Clarkson, escorted by Judge M. T. Owens, who acted as president of the evening, came forward and took seats on the platform. Col. Trumbo, who followed, seated himself among the audience. Both Mr. Clarkson and Col. Trumbo wore full dress.

Judge Owens in introducing the guest said that by some oversight the music had failed to arrive, but a Republican gathering could well get along without it, as music "had failed to save us last year." In referring to Mr. Clarkson's speech, Judge Owens said: "I wish to introduce to the Republicans of Los Angeles a gentleman who is not only a Republican, but an organizer and a fighter. He is not only a Republican, but what we Californians admire above all else, a Blaine Republican. (Prolonged cheers.) The gentleman whom I have the honor of presenting to you hails from Iowa, but that State has become too small for him, and he is now from the United States. I have the pleasure, fellow Republicans, of introducing to you the guest of the evening, Hon. James S. Clarkson."

Mr. Clarkson arose from his seat, and after the applause had somewhat subsided, began:

"I am glad to meet so many Republicans here tonight. I have a great liking for California and Californians, because the State and the people are independent. This nation is just beginning its career, the problems of the past are settled and settled before us. The East is very largely European, and as if America begins at Buffalo. But California is an American State in the true and full sense of the term. I like California because she is for the Union, honest money and good order. I also love California because of her good politics. In five national conventions I have stood with California to make the greatest man of the country President of the United States. (Cheers.) Mr. Blaine loved this State and he wanted to come here. It was always his ambition to spend his later years in the Golden State. During the Chilean affair Mr. Blaine looked out for this State, and the last thing he did was to send us a vessel to defend her interests. But, although the great statesman is no more, the Republican party, as strengthened by him and the ideas he represented, still lives. Yes, it still lives and is growing stronger than ever, notwithstanding the defeat of last year. That battle was fought by the left wing of the party—the right wing did not enter the conflict."

Then Mr. Clarkson turned upon the tariff and silver question. He recalled the good times under Republican rule and the bad times under the present administration. Mr. Clarkson concluded by saying that he hoped the Republicans would now get on their armor, and with good organization they could elect a Republican President in 1896. He paid a tribute to his own State, and hoped the Iowans in California would never forget the lessons they learned in their youth and always vote the Republican ticket.

Three cheers were then proposed for the guest of the evening, and they were given with a will.

Ex-District Attorney James McLachlan was then introduced as a young Republican who had fought during the last campaign. Mr. McLachlan said this was the first time that there had been such an assemblage of Republicans in Los Angeles since the great defeat. "We were told," he continued, "after election, that the Republican party was dead. That is not so. Whoever said that did not believe in Abraham Lincoln, in Ulysses S. Grant, in James A. Garfield, in James G. Blaine. Whoever said that has forgotten all that the Republicans proved during the last campaign, that our foreign trade had increased over 27 per cent. in the fiscal year of 1892." The speaker then dwelt on the great benefits of reciprocity and offered official figures to prove his statements. "Notwithstanding all this," he continued, "we were defeated, and no Republican can give a good reason for that defeat. But, as we are assembled here tonight, it is our duty as Republicans to find out if any mistake was made in the late campaign. We all remember how, when Blaine declined on February 6, 1893, to enter the race, California could not and would not believe it. We all remember the uncertainty as to the action of the California delegation at Minneapolis. We all remember how Platt, Quay, Warner Miller and our honored guest led the fight for the great statesman, and how California hoped against hope, that the great odds would somehow be overcome and that the ideal of this State would be nominated. When we look back on that day, we find that the convention it requires no great argument to discover that the delegation from California did not represent the wishes of the people—that every delegate who did not vote for Blaine misrepresented his constituents. There were 150 appointees of Harrison in that convention, who could only sustain the man who had appointed them. We have learned the lesson that it is not wisdom to pack a convention (vigorous applause) so that the members of it cannot consistently represent the people, when they are bound hand and foot to the man who controls their bread and butter." (Prolonged applause.)

The speaker then said Los Angeles county need not apologize. It was the banner county of the State, notwithstanding the cold blanket thrown over it by the nomination of Ben Harrison. (Ominous silence.) Mr. McLachlan concluded: "As a young Republican I welcome our guest as a true representative of the sentiments entertained by the State of California."

At the end of Mr. McLachlan's speech, the applause broke out afresh. The sentiments enunciated seemed to have found thorough favor with the audience, and there were many expressions of "That's so," "He's right," and others of similar import.

Short addresses were then delivered by Maj. J. A. Donnell and Col. Trumbo, after which the audience came forward and were presented to Mr. Clarkson. While the hand-shaking was in progress Mr. McLachlan requested a momentary cessation, and announced that a telegram had just been received, stating that the Governor had at last ended the suspense by appointing ex-Gov. Perkins to the Senatorial vacancy. The announcement was received with evidences of satisfaction.

After partaking of some of the punch, for which the Union League is famous, the audience dispersed.

WE DO NOT COMPLAIN.

We do not complain, because we have no reason to do so. Our business shows an increase of 30 per cent. over this time last year. We are employing more help and selling more goods of all kinds. Of course, we attribute all this to the more of doing business. We buy the best of everything, employ good help in all branches of our business, all our appliances are kept clean—our candy factory, our bakery, our ice cream factory and our kitchen are all clean. No other than white labor employed, and our prices are right. Of course, location cuts some figure—ours is the most central. For pure candies, the best ice cream in the city, a clean, home-cooked lunch or a glass of soda water give us a call. The Keystone, 112 North Spring street, T. A. Gardner, Manager.

HELEN GOULD.

The Richest Heiress and Her Traits.

She Will Soon Make Her Bow to Society.

Fifteen Millions in Cash is Her Goodly Portion.

And a Beautiful Home on Fifth Avenue, and One on the Hudson—Characteristics of the Only Daughter of the Late Jay Gould.

Special Contribution to the Times.

If that large class of ubiquitous persons who claim to know all the ins and outs of things, private and public, of what is known as the social world of a good and charming girl, and that she is a heiress. This fund of information runs out at this point, and they are waiting with some curiosity to add to it by means of personal observation.

The social debut of Miss Gould has been delayed considerably beyond the time that it would have been made, by the death of her father and mother. There was never a daughter more devoted to her mother than was Helen Gould to her father, the late Jay Gould. The two were very like in temperament and their constant companionship made the daughter the counterpart of her mother in disposition and manners—a result that was good for the young girl, for while the wife of Jay Gould never figured in society, but always shrank from so doing, she was none the less a superior woman in many ways.

The death of this mother threw the young girl upon her own resources. She could not enter into society, and indeed, had no wish to do so. Instead, she devoted herself to her father, who had become partly an invalid, and up to the time of his death she was his constant nurse and his comfort in his hours of suffering and sickness.

And so it is that Miss Gould will enter society a comparative stranger to its members.

Those who know Helen Gould give evidence that she is attractive both in Her favorite home is her late father's summer house at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, upon which he spent a fortune, and to good advantage. The house remains her property, and Miss Gould spends much of the summer there, to the great satisfaction of the poor of the neighborhood. Much was written during Jay Gould's life time of the splendid hostesses connected with the Irvington home, in which almost every known kind of rare plants and flowers were cultivated, and the cost, it is said, that the famous financier used to smile grimly when complimented upon his skill and taste in horticulture.

As a matter of fact, the multi-millionaire had very little to do with his conservatories save to foot the bill. He liked to have a negative sort of way, as he liked most things that his favorite did, but he left the management of the flowers to his daughter and the expert floriculturist whom he employed.

Miss Gould has always been more given to her tastes than most young women of large fortune. It is known that she has been with the fact to go in for sports and games of almost all sorts, and who is a skillful musician. If she ever had literary tendencies, as at one time her father had, she has carefully concealed the fact. She is practically mistress of her vast fortune, but is not likely to suffer at her hands, for she is said to have been a kind business and ever her brother George, now the head of the family and chief conservator of the vast Gould interests.

When Irvington-on-the-Hudson, Miss Gould lives in the mansion on Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh street, in which her father in his lifetime resided. Her brother, Charles, lives in the adjoining house just around the corner, and George Gould with his family still further up town. It is characteristic of this young woman that she likes to have some one to care for and in a sense look after. While she was badgered into womanhood she had an invalid mother and a father in the clutch of a dread disease to claim her attention and care. Besides, she has a stepmother who is a skillful musician. Now she still has the poor who are always with us, and she has besides her young brother, Howard, who though developing into manhood is still not beyond the care of his elder sister, who has in a way, always been his protector and guide, and who in former days helped him out of more than one small trouble. This brother has, however, developed into a healthy, manly fellow who is in more ways than one a credit to the elder sister, who was always his guide and friend.

Some of the knowing ones in discussing Miss Gould's coming debut, are somewhat expecting that she will dazzle every one with the magnificence of her jewels and all that. She could, of course, afford to command the best that Worth or any other of the great designers of the world could produce. She could startle the world with a display of diamonds when she "comes out." But she is not that kind of a young woman. Those who will be present when she makes her formal entrance into society will see a handsome young woman, well balanced, well dressed and well mannered. And they will be struck by the fact that the more they see of her the more they will like her; for as has been said, she is a modest, charmingly womanly girl, and that means a great deal.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

A Cool Wave Coming About the End of the Month.

ST. JOSEPH (Mo.) July 22.—My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from the 23d to the 27th. The next will reach the Pacific coast about the 25th, cross the mountains about the 26th, and the 29th, the great central valleys from the 29th to August 1, and the Eastern States about the 2d.

This disturbance will be at its greatest force in the Eastern States on August 1 and 2, and at the same time the storm waves will occur in many places in the great central valleys.

The warm wave will cross the western mountains about the 23d, the great central valleys about the 24th, and the Eastern States about August 1. The cool wave will cross the western mountains about the 25th, the great central valleys about August 2, and the Eastern States about August 4.

The August rainfall will be the heaviest in the northern States, while southern latitudes will be inclined to drought, except near the coast, where, in many places, rains will occur.

The unusual weather extremes of August will materially change crop conditions in most places in the United States. As a rule, these extremes will be the reverse of what they were during June and July. Where cool weather has prevailed extreme heat may be expected, where rains have been heavy, dry weather, and the destructive storms will occur where there has been quiet weather during the past season.

FOSTER'S LOCAL FORECASTS.

The storm waves will reach this meridian and the other changes will occur at and within 100 miles of Los Angeles within twenty-four hours before or after the dates given below.

July 23.—Wind changing.

July 24.—Cooler and clearing.

July 25.—Fair and cool.

July 27.—Moderating.

July 28.—Warmer.

July 29.—Storm wave on this meridian.

Dealing With Dad.

(Detroit Free Press.) The father of the girl, as is the case with many fathers, did not know anything about the young man who was courting his daughter, and when he appeared to ask the father's consent, he was met by a father who had a course of questions. At last he got down to business.

"Will you support my daughter in the style to which she has been accustomed?" he asked, in the same old strain.

The young man looked surprised.

"No, sir, I will not," he answered promptly.

"Then, sir, you cannot have her," and the old man was emphatic.

The young man had not at all discouraged. He looked around the room scornfully.

"Of course," he said, "I shall not support her in the style to which she has been accustomed. I have too much respect for my father. I've got $100 to your one, and I'm going to have everything she wants if I bust the bank. See!"

The old man surrendered.

"required to take notice" that they must assemble in special session at the capital on August 7, form collectively a body of men that possesses some eminently curious statistical features.

To begin with, each member of the House of Representatives is, theoretically, the mouthpiece of just 123,000 persons—a decided increase over the 30,000 that a representative stood for in the first Congress. The smaller number was provided for by the Constitution, the larger is based on the last census. Every member of the present Congress may reasonably be presumed to have read the proclamation calling the extra session within twenty-four hours after it was issued. When the first extra session of Congress ever held was called by President John Adams in March, 1797, many a member did not even learn the fact for weeks. Small as the country then was—some sixteen States, mostly along the seaboard—it would have been impossible for Congress to assemble in the single month allowed by the Constitution. The House of Representatives, then, was a hodge-podge of men from all over the country, who had to make their way to the capital on horseback to attend the special session of 1797 did not reach Philadelphia until the nation's capital—until after Congress had adjourned. In that year the Senate and House assembled in a little brick building with a few rooms in it. The White House was just a block away, and like-wise of brick and very modest. The reason for the special session was that the President, John Adams, had been elected, and the House and Senate were to meet for the first time.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Some of the Oddities.

In the House are 204 members who served in the last Congress, besides 17 others not in the last Congress, but members of Congresses previous to it. The father of the House is Charles O'Neill of Philadelphia, Pa., who, if he outlives his present term, will have been a member of Congress for thirty consecutive years in the lower branch of Congress. The House will contain 206 lawyers, 47 farmers and agriculturists, 14 journalists, 14 manufacturers, 13 merchants, 5 bankers, 3 teachers, 1 publisher, 2 doctors, 2 clergymen, 2 college professors, 2 printers, 6 gentlemen of leisure, 2 society men, and 30 odd whose pursuits are too indifferently reported for classification. Of the 204 members, 100 are Democrats, 94 are Republicans, and 10 call themselves Populists. That leaves 2 undetermined. The most eloquent of all is W. Bourke Cockran of New York. The one with the most solid constituency is Thomas J. Geary of Santa Rosa, Cal., whose motto is "The Chinese must go." The most unpopular outside of his own district is William S. Holman of Australia, who, should O'Neill die, would become father of the House and is serving his fifteenth term. The thinnest is a member from Medicine Lodge, Kan., who wears a long, thin, pointed beard and is called "Old Man." The most trustworthy is Thomas Dunn English of New York, once the close companion of Abraham Lincoln, who has been a member of Congress for thirty years. The most interesting is the Prince of Wales, who is a member of the House of Commons in England, and who is a member of the House of Representatives in the United States. WASHINGTON, July 13, 1893.

MR. GEN. GRANT sold his New York house a few weeks ago for $1,000,000 and it is understood that this money is to be invested in 6 per cent. mortgages on Washington property. The story of the sale is an interesting one. The house was bought some years before Grant's death by his friends, George W. Childs and Mr. Drexel of Philadelphia, and was made a present to him. Drexel and Childs paid $500,000 for the house, and it formed Gen. Grant's home during his last days. In it he wrote part of his book, and from it he went to the front. Gen. Grant had told Mrs. Grant to sell the house, telling her that she would probably find it too large for her use, and that by investing the money which came from it she could get a better income than by renting it. Mrs. Grant refused to do this. She did not like to part with the property largely for sentimental reasons, and she told Mr. Childs that she had refused an offer of $1,000,000 for it. As time went on, however, she found the property rather a burden than a source of income. She has been living in the country with her son, Ulysses S. Grant, Jr., and not long ago she received this offer of $1,000,000 for the house. She wrote to Mr. Childs, and he advised her to accept it. She did so, and as soon as she received the money she telegraphed Mr. Childs to come to New York to meet her. Upon his appearance she told him she wished him to invest this money for her. She said that Gen. Grant had told her to sell the house, and that she wanted him to take this money and place it where he thought best. She thereupon gave him a check for $1,000,000, and he took this with him to Philadelphia. On the way there he fell into conversation with a friend, and this man asked him some questions about the house. Mr. Childs thereupon told the story which his friend told me. As Mr. Childs showed my friend the check, he was asked what he intended to do with the money. He replied:

"I shall invest it in mortgages secured by Washington real estate, which will bring me a good income. I shall have Washington property in the hands of the United States today. It is steady growth in value, and it will not be affected to any extent by panics or strikes."

HOW STATESMEN MAKE MONEY.

It is wonderful how many statesmen are making money out of Washington, and how many are making mistakes that are costing them a great deal of money. The most interesting story is that of John Sherman, who has a million feet of ground on Columbia Heights. He bought this ground for $100,000, and it is now worth $1,000,000. He has also made a great deal of money out of real estate in California. He has a great deal of land in California, and it is now worth a great deal of money. Vermont avenue, and just above him is Senator Allison's home, which is worth about $20,000. One of the finest houses at the capital is that of Senator Hale, which was built by the money from the estate of Zach Chandler, and which cost considerably more than $150,000. Both Senator Teller and Senator Wolcott's houses cost him something like $100,000, and Senator Washburn lives in the prison-like mansion of Senator Edmunds at the corner of the street and Massachusetts avenue. Ex-Senator Bayard owns a house here which is worth perhaps $25,000, and for which Senator Cullum pays $100,000. Round round, Cuth Davis of Minnesota has a house on Massachusetts avenue, just across the street from Cullum's, and a little above this is the big house in which Secretary Windom was living at the time of his death. It cost something like $100,000 to build it, and it has had a "For Sale" sign in front of it for the past year.

The late George Pendleton's house is also for sale. It is on the corner above Scott Circle, and is worth $50,000. Next to it is a mansion which has just been bought by the Episcopal preacher of St. John's church, $50,000, and a little further up is George Cockran's Washington home, which was built by Senator Robinson, and for which he paid some $25,000 and $100,000.

And so I might go on for another column with the names of noted men who own property here.

Not confined to statesmen, but it contains literateurs, retired capitalists and rich women. There are a number of rich newspaper men who own good houses at the capital, and Washington has within the past eighty years grown a crop of mushroom millionaires of its own. Of these other classes I may treat in a future letter.

"AFTER-DINNER COFFEE."

A Plea for Its Universal Adoption—The Paris Custom.

Special Correspondence of The Times.

PARIS, July 14. Families where "after-dinner coffee" is the custom are well aware of the social and hygienic value of the half hour over the fragrant cups. But as I remember it, the custom is not common in America, being confined for the most part to the houses of the wealthy—they do so many of even the little things very differently over here, where charming every-day pleasures and refinements are not at all the exclusive privilege of the rich.

The Frenchwoman has a level head on many of the little points of domestic life, and nothing could induce her to eliminate the serving of after-dinner coffee from her personal duties to her family. She believes that all the agreeable things of society, like all the good things of earth, are intended for all men; that a habit which is pleasing to the rich is pleasing to the poor; that what is good in a city house is good in a farmhouse, and that working lives are a good deal brighter for being enlivened by all the cheerful customs practicable.

All of this was forcibly impressed upon me at a dinner I shared not long ago in a French family, where hard work and long hours are the rule for every member, and where every detail of the household speaks of the closest economy.

We rose from a dinner of five courses, each of which was as simple as the market afforded, but served in a faultless style, and went into the little family sitting-room. The apartment was high up in the sixth story and had a balcony. My hostess, who had, by the way, done eight hours of hard work that day in a shop, threw open the window, saying, "We'll have our coffee on the balcony."

We seated ourselves outside, and a little table was brought out. The coffee followed. The cups were the hardest, plainest ironstone; the spoons were not all of solid silver, I am sure. But I never enjoyed a cup of after-dinner coffee more in my life than that one taken high up among the Parisian roofs in the soft gray May twilight. All the elements that form the charm of after-dinner coffee in elegant rooms—leisure, intimacy, unbending—were there.

It was a little shopkeeper's family, which knew how to live and enjoy itself in spite of poverty, and which no amount of hard work could prevent from grafting into its life all refined and graceful customs.

Such conceptions of life are common among the French. They are too rare among not only the poor of the United States, but even among the well-to-do, who frequently seem to have a veritable antipathy to enjoying themselves, and to adopting agreeable customs; to many of them the mere suggestion of serving coffee in the sitting-room or on the lawn after dinner would mean a foolish affectation of "style."

There are several standpoints from which a plea for after-dinner coffee can be made.

Health is one. The perfect relaxation which accompanies the leisurely stirring and sipping of a tiny cupful of coffee is the best of digestives.

Good humor is another. I defy a family to remain unamiable or unsocial long all its members are grouped in unconventional attitudes, leaning against the mantel, seated on the arm of somebody's chair, lounging on the sofa, leaning from the window, or, if they are feeling the necessity of severe conversational effort, all of them glad to stretch themselves a little after the formalities of the dinner. It encourages intimacy, and tempts all to talk freely.

The artistic standpoint is not to be overlooked, and I do not know but this is the strongest one among the French.

What is more attractive in the household than the delicate service which modern workmen turn out for after-dinner coffee—silver bowls and pots and trays in Louis XVI. patterns; Sevres sets in the famous blue and gold; rich copper in ebony mountings; flag-green work from Norway or Mexico; Copenhagen blue and white, and all the fancies of the Japanese? What is more interesting than the collection of souvenir cups and spoons which serve so well both for the coffee and for keeping up conversation?

I have been astonished repeatedly in Paris to find what pains are taken to have in summer even in the heart of Paris, a corner in the open air where coffee can be served. If the apartment controls the corner of a court or garden, a little summer house is frequently built, vines are trained over it, chairs and tables of iron are put inside, and here the family regularly retires after dinner. Sometimes awnings and vines are arranged over a balcony until it is a bower.

There is a picture in the French salon of the present year which is the strongest of pleas. It is entitled "Intimate"—a family love their coffee cups after dinner. It is a humble interior, but it gives a sense of the complete confidence, of the perfect content of a group where no restraints exist. The after-dinner coffee service forms a prominent feature of the picture.

What Depend Upon Its Cut and Hang.

Nothing Less Than the Outline of My Lady's Gown—How to Cut Silk Petticoats for Service.

Special Correspondence of The Times.

It is not so easy a thing as one thinks, this cut of a petticoat.

It is not enough to have the seams come out even, as I remember I used to think when I was trying to make my own petticoats; in fact, if the seams are either stretched or pulled in the least bit in order to "match," the result is a bad hanging skirt, and one that will not iron into shape. No one ever has a pattern for an underskirt; everyone seems to think that it can be "just torn off and run up," never realizing how much the petticoat has to do with the contour and hang of the gown skirt.

But smart modistes will tell you that, unless your petticoat is all right they cannot warrant you the hang of your gown. And there is reason in what they say; for suppose the petticoat belt sags, as it is liable to do on a slim woman with no hips—this fault sinks the fullness down below the waist, causing the dress skirt to sink in at the waist line, where it ought not. Again, when the belt is too large, and you lap it over and tie the strings around you, not only the skirt but the waist of your gown will fit abominably, for the strings create a ridge. The bad set of many coats and basques just at the waist line is owing to the careless cut and adjustment of the petticoat at that point, which ought to suit the sudden flare there exactly.

Yet most women seem to think only of the cut of their gowns, never giving a thought to the fit of their underwear—neither petticoats nor corset covers. The long use of the colored petticoat in preference to the white one has filled the shops with hundreds in all colors and qualities, so that making them when they could be bought as cheaply, with the saving of time, seemed an industrial absurdity. But now there are good reasons for knowing how to make petticoats; one is that the petticoat of a year ago is not the right style for the present dress skirt; another is that white petticoats are coming into vogue again, at least, so all our shoppers in Paris say.

THE PROPER MAKING OF WHITE SKIRTS.

Always wash your goods first; don't guess at how much a petticoat is going to shrink in the laundry. Then tear your widths off—never cut them—and pull them straight; always baste your seams; begin to both baste and sew at the top, and go down, leaving all the unevenness at the bottom, trimming off none of the widths until all the seams are sewed. These are general directions.

To particularize in cutting, do not gore the cloth to too much of an angle. Next, lay out your eye to cut a gore, but follow the easy and sure plan of taking one width and folding it over on the bias, allowing seven and a half inches difference between the top and bottom, with the advantage at the bottom, of course, in this way you get your two side gores without losing an inch of goods. In white skirts the back is frequently left full and straight, while the front width is gored enough to correspond to the darts that come in the front of a dress skirt.

In putting your belt on, take pains to have it fit exactly, tying it with narrow linen tape. If you prefer the drawing string style, then stitch the string into the band until you reach three inches from the back, then let it pull free. Otherwise the fullness will be apt to slip around to the front. But a slim woman should see to it that a few gathers are fastened over the hips. In putting in the draw-string; she usually needs their graceful fullness.

In trimming, avoid the open, showy embroideries; one washing and ironing is likely to create more or less havoc with "open work," and nothing is more untidy about a petticoat than little strings dangling down from frayed and frayed trimmings. Also, the embroidery is usually a border, done on finer, frailer material than the garment itself, and after a few launderings they "part company" at intervals, and satisfactory repairs are not possible.

You will be better satisfied to buy your embroidery done above a wide hem, or else to choose the narrow cambric border with very little "work" on it. Most of the French imported petticoats are trimmed with the hand-wrought embroidery, which often consists in little more than a neat scallop and a few dots. The French nunnery-made garments are good models. Some of the petticoats have plain broad hems eight inches deep with no scallops at all, a raised design wrought on the hem being the only embroidery. A good rule for white petticoat trimming is "not what will look pretty, but what will wash well." If you can't afford hand embroidery, make your petticoats with a hem and tucks or narrow tacked ruffles; these hold the skirt out well. Very satisfactory ones are made with a hem a foot deep and no trimming. These petticoats take starch well and are easy to launder.

Lonsdale cambric is the goods most sought for white petticoats. This can be bought for 12 1/2 cents to 20 cents a yard, and takes seven yards, including ruffles. For good, strong wear nothing is better, although some are made of shirting at 10 cents a yard. Whatever is now being used considerably for white skirts to go under thin dresses. This can have a crinoline lining fold which keeps it stiff. As a cloth it retains the starch better than most, and its faint gloss gives the appearance of silk underneath a thin gown.

HOW TO CUT SILK PETTICOATS.

Women who like to wear silk petticoats are making new ones. The old ones are nearly useless under the new gown skirt; they flop about the ankles, while the gown skirt is standing out in flutes around the bottom. Few of the old petticoats are over two and a quarter or two and a half yards wide, and they have no lining in them, but with their ruffles and laces hang in a soft, shapeless mass about the feet.

Our own strong American silks make excellent petticoats. The quantity required is six and a half yards. This does not include ruffles. Cut by the diagram given here a petticoat of such silk will be one order which your dressmaker will like to "hang" your gown skirt because the silk fulness holds it out well; and worn over it your gown will keep its contour—an advantage which silk petticoats possess over cambric, however perfectly the latter may be cut and made.

Gore the front width with a difference of ten inches at the top; then take four widths of your silk and fold it over according to the first diagram, measuring your corresponding tops and bottoms exactly, with a difference of seven and a half inches between them; in this manner you get two gores out of one width. Four of these widths make eight gores and these are put together, four either side of the front, the bias edge of course always going to the back. A seam will then fall directly down the back and the bottom of the petticoat will lie in flutes just as your dress skirt does.

Before you put on your ruffles, and after you have trimmed the bottom even, face the skirt with a bias facing of such stiffening material as you prefer, about twelve inches in width; this keeps the skirt from dragging around the feet. Across the four back gores run a ribbon draw-string, which holds the fullness together in the back and keeps the dress skirt bouffant.

In trimming a silk petticoat, one or two large ruffles are better than the small ones commonly used. If your skirt is well clear of the ground you can pink them; otherwise, hem them, for the "pinkings" gathers up to itself all little straws and dust. If the woman is tall and slim, so that it will be "becoming," another ruffle inside the skirt on the crinoline gives a pretty, fluffy appearance when the dress skirt is lifted.

There is a new belting for petticoats that is inexpensive, only 9 cents a yard. It is closely woven, of fine linen threads, and is double, with the bottom edges fuller than the upper edge. This gradation gives the necessary spring for the gathers over the hips and back, while the top keeps the skirt tight about the waist. It comes only in white and black, but these two colors will answer all purposes.

I saw a white American silk skirt yesterday being made for organdie dresses, and cut by the diagram given here. The width of the silk was twenty-one inches, the skirt measuring about four yards around the bottom, and requiring six and a half yards of material.

Of course, extra silk was used for the ruffles; the lace on these was point de Paris, the most durable of the trimming laces.

Many modistes are trying themselves in arranging fanciful silk skirts for trousseaus and ball wear. Duchesse satin with stripes and flowers is used, or many, and heavy embroidered "atins," that are as stiff as those used in the old days. These are trimmed with laces and bows knots of satin ribbons. I saw an exquisite creation designed for the trousseau of a June bride by an importer on Nineteenth street. The material was of white duchesse satin, delicately embroidered in pink roses with a few pale green leaves thrown about. Underneath the wide ruffles of duchesse lace were fastened flat bows of pink satin ribbon. This was so beautiful a petticoat that it seemed a positive shame to see the ball gown going over it.

While this is undeniably the best way to cut silk petticoats to meet the present fashion, yet there are other ways for other kinds of petticoats.

PETTICOATS FOR SERVICE.

For instance, the black mohair which makes a nice morning petticoat for shopping or walking, is often lined all through with dressmaker's cambric at six cents a yard; the back width having a ruffle stitched on half way up with a band. This gives more fulness to the back, and is quite pretty.

The holland and gingham skirts for country and morning wear in the house should be made perfectly plain. Be strong, in the manner of the white ones described. Instead of ruffles they should have box plaiting, double or single, around the bottom, a pretty way of finishing being to edge the plaiting with white tape.

A WAKE HEART.

The "Valvular Trouble"—To Die of "Fatty Heart" is Suicide.

Special Correspondence of The Times.

There are many causes of "heart failure." There can be many causes for any muscular weakness.

The heart is really a hollow muscle. It is divided into four chambers, whose openings are fitted with little trap doors which open and close with exactness, and which are prevented from swinging beyond their meeting point by delicate muscle cords.

Any of the parts of the heart may become weakened, and serious trouble is sure to follow. Had we in place of a heart a dilated blood vessel like the worm, or had we a more developed heart like the bird, we might escape a number of "heart derangements."

Exercises for derangements of the heart.

"SEEKING YOUR OWN HEART."

If you would like to see an enlarged copy of your own heart, buy a sheep's heart and imagine it to be the size of your fist and lying in the left mid cavity of your chest, just behind the breast bone and ribs.

Cut this sheep's heart lengthwise on each side and examine the structure. You will find one of the large chambers thin walled, the other more than twice as thick. You will see two small chambers above which open into the large ones. Notice the valvular adjustments and the little cords which control them.

CAUSE OF VALVULAR TROUBLES.

Now if the valves in your heart get rough on their edges by inflammation or by a deposit from the blood, or if the cords become loose so that the valves swing in beyond their junctions, their being a leak in the blood back into the cavity from which it has been pumped by the regular contraction of the heart. The continuance of this bad valvular action forms one serious organic disease of the heart.

"VAULTED BREATH" AND "PALPITATION."

A woman may think that her lungs are weak because she puffs and pants in going up stairs or in climbing a hill; instead, there may be serious trouble with the heart, and nothing else.

On the other hand, she may have palpitation, and a sharp that she feels she is likely to die at any minute, and yet the real trouble be gaseous dyspepsia. Like Jerome's hero in "Three Men in a Boat," she may think that the doctor is an unsympathetic fellow who tells her that her heart is sound, but that her dinner and stomach have not made peace with each other.

TRUTHS ABOUT "FATTY HEARTS."

There is, however, a kind of palpitation which comes from fatty heart and this is serious.

Fatty hearts are found in persons who have led an inactive life, have eaten sumptuously and have grown fat.

There is nothing to hinder the internal organs from taking on fat and packing their inter-cellular spaces with oil cells.

Naturally the heart, which pumps all the blood of the body through its chambers hundreds of times an hour, receives its full share of the fat in the blood, this settles into the muscular walls, when there is a great deal of fat, and sooner or later it puts an end to good contraction and dilation.

This is also the condition of the hearts of drunkards, and in people who have taken more alcohol into their systems than can be excreted. Brain, liver and kidneys suffer as well as the heart. Death from this cause is nothing but suicide.

SUITABLE HOME TREATMENT.

If you are inclined to be fat, be careful of your diet. Do not eat potatoes or fat. Do not drink water with your meals; rather drink nothing until half an hour after eating. Form the habit of going without tea and coffee. Do not eat sweets.

brations of the chest, slow and regular percussion over the heart, rotatory motions of the arms and legs.

When her heart is beating too fast, a woman ought to stop in whatever she is doing, and take slow leg movements. The movement called "Preparation for Jumping" is a good one. This is the way:

(1) Rise on your toes, holding your hands on your hips, your fingers forward.

(2) Bend your knees outward and downward.

(3) Rise on your toes again.

Repeat three times, very slowly.

Another movement good for palpitation is shown in figure 1. Lean against a doorway and rotate both legs alternately, beginning with the ankle, then slowly letting the whole leg rotate in a small circle.

Another good movement is shown by figure 2. Lie on a flat surface and make knee-bendings, alternating right with left, very slowly and very thoroughly.

Again, stand erect, hands at the sides, heels together, toes turned out; raise your arms slowly outward, palms down, then upward, palms facing each other, then forward, arms perfectly parallel and downward, taking meantime a full, deep breath. This movement is shown in figures 3 and 4.

Another good exercise which a woman can take without any preparation for it, is to stand heels together and raise her arms outward level with her shoulders, then slowly rotate them. She should bend the head backward, arch the chest well and take a long inspiration with each rotation, rising on her tiptoes when the arms are at the top of their circle. This is shown in figure 5.

Many motions much more violent can be taken when a heart disease is in its earliest stages. Many exercises are capable of arresting further development of valvular trouble, and of preventing the deposit of fat.

Climbing hills, going up stairs slowly with good breathing, in fact any strong

TOPOLOBANPO.

Another Distressed Family from the Ill-starred Colony.

(San Francisco Call, Friday.) There arrived by the steamer Newbern last night, from Mazatlan, James Alfred Kinghorn-Jones, one of the numerous sufferers by the Topolobampo colonization scheme. Mr. Jones is accompanied by his family, consisting of a wife and eleven children, ranging from a mature young woman to a boy in knickerbockers. They tell a distressful story of the misfortunes which have attended them since they left their home in England, eighteen months ago, enticed by the rosy prospectus of the colony managers. After sixteen months of struggle, they abandoned all hope, bade good-by to nearly the entire savings of a lifetime, and will now seek a fresh start in British Columbia.

While the climate and environment of Topolobampo are not favorable to the development of Anglo-Saxon civilization, it would still be possible, they say, for a colony to exist and have the necessities of life if there were anything like intelligent management, but there are three factors, each ready to spring at each other's throat, and all retarding the development which the 400 colonists would be glad to go ahead with if those in authority would only allow them to move forward.

Unless a change of management takes place soon, the colony will hardly be able to find subsistence. Most of these remaining would be only too glad to leave if they could save out of their wrecks enough to carry them back to civilization and obtain a new start in life.

A DISREPUTABLE HOUSE.

Grace Carlisle Before the Police Court—Fines Imposed.

Grace Carlisle and the girls who live in the house she keeps at Upper Main and Marchessault streets appeared in Justice Seaman's court yesterday morning. The young men who were arrested at the same time with them when the house was raided last Tuesday morning did not appear.

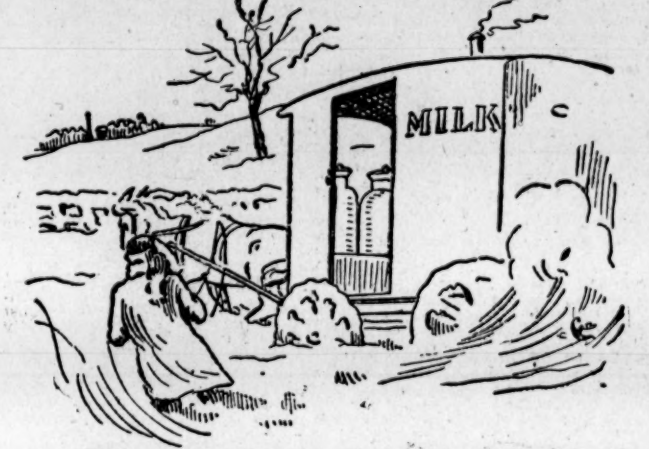

H. H. Appel, Esq., represented the defendants, and entered a plea of guilty. Officer Vigors was placed on the stand. He testified to having heard a loud yelling in the house, and also told of the condition in which he found things within.

Grace Carlisle, upon being called, swore that the girls who occupied the house she kept were not given to singing lewd songs, as had been charged. The men who visited the place frequently did so, however, and it was very difficult for her to prevent them from so doing.

The court imposed a sentence of $10 or ten days in each case. That being the amount of each of the bail deposits, the bail was applied.

IT IS THE ONLY WAY TO MAKE TRADE and retain it; it is the only way to make advertising effective, it is the way to increase trade. The merchant who deviates in an advertisement is not a good advertiser; he is trying to humbug you, and if you doubt his word he feels grieved. A good advertisement is a truthful one; once secure confidence and you secure trade. We have confidence in our Linen Department; we have trade in our Linen Department; we believe in giving the public good value—good goods at a reasonable price. Trade cannot be maintained upon poor qualities, even at a low price; a good article may seem high at the start, when the wear is considered the cheapness is apparent to the buyer. We believe in good Linens, we want you to believe in good linens. Here is a good full-bleached extra heavy all-linen Huck Towel with white and colored borders for 25c; the same towel with a hemstitched edge for 35c. This towel is made out of the best long-fibered flax, well twisted, well finished, finely bleached, and when you buy this towel you do not throw away your money on a poor article; you get the best, something we take pride in recommending—you should buy them. Here is another towel, heavier and better; the border has a measly look, it is like a homely girl—very homely, but awfully good. This towel has a brown border and does not show up as well as with some other color. If you buy this towel for beauty you will get left; if you buy it for quality and wear you will get the best 25c towel you ever bought; you may think this towel is handsome, but we don't. Twenty-five cents buys them; ask Mr. Williamson to show you these homely towels.

It is selling time for Carriage Parasols:

IT IS THE TIME TO BUY: $2.50 SILK Carriage Parasols, less than two weeks old. Gros Grain, all silk, extra heavy, unlined Carriage Shades, regular price $2; all-silk lined Carriage Parasols, regular price, $1.75 and $2; fine Gros Grain, ruffled, extra heavy Carriage Parasols, worth $3. It is selling time, it is time for you to buy; $1.25 buys the choice. It is selling time, tell your neighbors Sheward is extending his advertising and selling at the selling time. Now is the time for you to buy. Finest Carriage Shades were $3, were $2.50, were $2, were $1.75; now, Monday, the big bargain day, $1.25 for the choice. It is selling time, it is advertising time, it is your time to buy.

There is no mystery about it.

IT IS THE SELLING TIME FOR CLOAKS; IT is selling time now, it is selling time now, it is selling time now. All wool Jackets, high sleeves, all sizes, 500 of them. It is selling time now, right now; one dollar buys the choice—28 inches long, perfect in every way. We are advertising.

It is the time to buy.

IT IS THE TIME TO SELL—600 Women's Clay Worsteds, French diagonal, fine Serges, all pure wool; some are lined, some are half lined, all worth every day in the year $10 each. It is selling time for Women's Cloaks—half price takes the choice, $5; some are worth $15, some are worth $16.50, some are lined with all-silk Rhadame, some are lined with all-silk Surah, some are lined with an extra heavy satin, and these will be added to the $5 line. It is selling time for Women's Cloaks, it is buying time for Women's Cloaks. Now is bigger selling to create bigger advertising; it is the time to buy.

It is the selling time of the year.

IT IS THE TIME TO SELL GENTS' UNDERWEAR—half price for any that is left; it is the selling time of the year. Gents' soiled Linen Collars, 5c; gents' soiled Linen Cuffs, 10c a pair. It is the selling time for Gents' Neckties, 25c for the pick of the stock; Windsor Ties, 15c; Windsor Ties, 25c. Letting down the prices, selling out the odds and ends here, there and everywhere. It is selling time of the year, it is cleaning up time, now is the time to buy. Dollar Cloaks, Monday, all-wool dollar cloaks; none can be seen till Monday morning; all sizes in stock. Selling time for Corsets—half price—it is the time to buy, it is bargain time, it is advertising time. The crowds will increase four-fold next Monday. You should see our dollar cloaks; you should see them, you should.

Ginghams have the call this season

IN WASH DRESS GOODS; THE REAL SCOTCH Zephyrs at 25c a yard are the best of all good colors; they do not fade, they will not shrink, they hold their brilliancy and lustre to the end. Anderson's Scotch Ginghams are the best—the choicest in colors, the best in design; small, neat checks and hair line mourning effects; nine styles for children in pinks, blues, greens and fancy colors. Buy the Anderson Ginghams, they are the best.

We believe the active merchant will be more active when competing merchants are the less active. It is the driving merchant who secures the lions share of trade during times of inactivity. Monday all-wool dollar cloak sale. The cloaks are all-wool. We don't know what the silver dollars are from the talk of Wall street. It looks like dough, but we will take them. The Chemical National Bank of New York has $300,000 capital; surplus $7,221,400. They pay annual dividends of $150, and each $100 share are quoted at $4800, and yet these fellow say silver is no good. They are blooming idiots. One silver dollar buys one all-wool cloak. You have the dollar because we saw you standing in line the other day to draw it out of the bank. Bring your dollar along Monday at 8 o'clock.

It is the selling time of the year.

IT IS THE TIME OF THE YEAR FOR THE biggest bargains. Fine imported Clay Worsteds Jackets, lined with the finest satin and Satin Rhadame, full length, high sleeves, perfectly made, made to sell for $15, $16.50 and $20—Monday is selling day, Monday is advertising day—five dollars for the choice; it is the selling time of the year, it is the time to buy. The lining in some is alone worth the money. We are advertising the Cloak Department. Tell your neighbors it is selling time at Sheward's. What will the cloak houses think, what will you think? We think it is the selling time, it is the time for you to buy. Monday the greatest selling time of the year, Monday the biggest bargain day of the year.

It is selling time for Corsets.

IT IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO INVESTIGATE. It is the time for you to buy Warner's Coraline Corset, regular dollar quality for fifty cents. It is selling time for Coraline Corsets, it is the time for you to buy, it is the time to buy Ferris Waists, it is selling time for Ferris Waists; regular dollar Ferris Waists now fifty cents, regular seventy-five-cent Ferris Waists now 38c. It is selling time for Ferris Waists, it is the time for you to buy.

It is the time for you to buy

WARNER'S FRENCH MODEL CORSETS, regular price $1.50; now is the time to buy, it is selling time now at 75c. It is advertising time, it is the time to largely increase the trade; it is buying time for you, it is selling time at Sheward's. Have you told your neighbors Monday is bargain day at Sheward's.

A World's Fair exhibit of the ROYAL WORCESTER CORSET COMPANY IS made in our show windows; they are photographs taken from life-size wax figures, and is considered by all the finest exhibit of corsets ever made in the world. There is nothing strange about this for those who understand the merits of a Royal Worcester Corset. Everywhere they have taken the lead, everywhere they have the merit of being placed side by side with imported corsets in all the best houses of America, and they are noted for being the equal of the best. We think so well of them that we are discarding all other brands and will in the future invite trade exclusively upon the merits of the Royal Worcester Corset. The Royal Worcester Corset has the faculty of suiting more ladies than any other corset in existence. Other manufacturers will, in some one or two of their styles, get a perfect fit. The Royal Worcester will fit more people and will suit the different forms of more ladies than any other brand in existence; this is not mere talk, it is facts. Our corset salesladies have been thoroughly instructed by the Royal Worcester Corset Co. as to the different figures these corsets are best adapted. You may like the style of a certain corset, but that corset may not be suited to your figure; it is our business to tell you why another style is better adapted for your form; we make it a point to fit them to your form and have a room specially for this purpose. When you consider that you can buy a Royal Worcester from a dollar up to the finest grade, in all lengths and forms, it certainly means that we understand the corset business and make it a point to give you the style of corset that will help shape your form. We are now closing out all other brands and adding to the Royal Worcester line. You can buy other brands at one-half the regular price.

The home of Maj. C. J. Fallon on Twenty-fifth street was the scene of a beautiful reception from 8 until 11 o'clock last evening, on which occasion Maj. and Mrs. Fallon had the pleasure of presenting to a host of friends their son, J. H. Fallon, and wife (nee Coe) of San Francisco.

The rooms had been transformed into the appearance of a bower, the large bay window in front being carpeted with white rugs, and the curtains lifted across with tips of pepper boughs and white oleanders. This was the work of the bride's hands, and was very daintily done. Here, for more than two hours, the young couple received introductions and congratulations, and a fair picture was presented. The bride, a perfect blonde, with the bluest eyes and clearest complexion possible to the human type, has an imposing figure, which was last night heightened by her wedding robe of rich white corded silk, with full train and garniture of old point lace. The bride was edged with orange blossoms, and she carried white carnations.

The rooms were thronged throughout the evening, the invited guests including Senator and Mrs. White, Dr. and Mrs. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. James Burdett, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Laubersheimer (Wilmington), Mrs. Hill, Miss Sabich, Miss Fortman, V. A. Strong, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Howes, Mr. and Mrs. H. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Jevne, Miss A. Boehme (Santa Monica), Mr. and Mrs. F. W. de Van, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Off, Gen. and Mrs. McCook, Capt. and Mrs. Charles L. Collins, Col. and Mrs. H. G. Otis, Miss Otis, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. C. Klokke, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. A. Muller, Miss Childs, Miss Ruth Childs, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Hicks, Miss Jevne, Miss H. Strong, Miss Laubersheimer, Miss Harting, Miss L. Harting, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carey (Wilmington), Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lankershim, Mr. and Mrs. Graat, Dr. and Mrs. West Hughes, Prof. and Mrs. Havemann, ex-Mayor and Mrs. Hazard, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schallert, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Reed, Mrs. E. F. Spence, Mr. and Mrs. George Dickson, Miss Kennedy, Miss Dillon, Miss Marie Mullen, Mrs. E. Cook Webb (San Francisco), Mr. and Mrs. Q. D. Tufts, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. H. Barting, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Plater, Mrs. McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stewart, Mr. Sabich, Mr. and Mrs. E. Hoffman, Dr. and Mrs. Seaman of Wilmington, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gutierrez, Mr. and Mrs. L. Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Whiting, Mr. and Mrs. D. McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. A. McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Melius, Mr. and Mrs. Carson and the Misses Carson of Dominguez ranch, J. A. McGarry, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Mott, Mr. and Mrs. Strong, Mrs. O. W. Childs, Maj. and Mrs. Adna R. Chaffee, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kaye, Mr. and Mrs. D. Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Stinson, Mrs. E. H. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Girdlestone, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fortman, Misses Wadsworth, Spence, Howes, Klokke, Havemann, Tufts, Maud Tufts, Reed, Gutierrez, Strong, Howard, Fallon and Kathleen Fallon.

Refreshments were served, the dining-room being beautifully decorated, and the entire service attractive. Music and conversation filled the evening.

AFTERNOON WHIST.
At the rooms of the California Club yesterday afternoon Mrs. F. K. Ainsworth gave a whist party to a large number of friends. One hundred invitations had been issued, but many were absent from the city, and only sixty were in attendance. Thirteen tables were filled, and a lovely tableau cannot be imagined than was presented among the palms and ornamental grasses with which the banquet hall of the clubrooms was lined. All the window recesses were cosily decorated with green, and a large screen of plumage was one of the prettiest sights the great room afforded. There were flowers and potted plants in variety, clumps of peppers, bananas, dracenas, aralias, and much of a purely tropical character that afforded a fine background for the ladies, all in delicate summer costumes. In a side room Lowinsky's orchestra was stationed, and it was the comment that these favorite musicians never played better. The score cards were dainty affairs, all different, to match partners, and all bearing different characters. The prizes were a Bohemian glass vase, and a half-dozen Limoges china plates. The first was won by Mrs. Lemons, the second by Mrs. Fleischman.

Those present were: Meses Stevens, Briggs, Banning, Friessner, Childs, Bonnell, Grant, Griffith, Thomas, Seigethy, Duncan, Fleischman, Hotterhoff, MacGowan, Lewis, Peck, Slanson, Miller, Ridgeway, Miles, Howes, Hobbs, Carpenter, Mackey, Jones, Jones, Marriner, Childress, Cook, Plater, O'Melveny, True, Cline, Conroy, and Misses Childs, Butler, Banning, Waddilove, Bessie Gorham, Easton, and Johnstone. Punch was served through the entire afternoon, and the refreshments consisted of terrapin, sandwiches, chocolate, cream and cake.

ARMOUR HOP.
A delightful hop was given at the Ardmore Hotel, Sixth and Broadway, last Thursday evening, by the members of the Ardmore Club. It was strictly a full-dress affair, and the spacious ballroom was beautifully decorated and canvased. Many handsome toilets were worn, and among the twenty-five couples present the following were numbered: Mr. and Mrs. L. Stasforth, Dr. and Mrs. Pritchard, Mr. and Mrs. H. Wilmet, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. Mackey, Misses Garner, Blackman, Newman, Jenkins, Graham, Bristol, Rhodes, Reberd, Lewis, Stimer, Smith and Messrs. Fleming, Fruhling, Murray, Pettigrew, C. L. Chester and ladies, C. and M. Mackey, Fitch, Mullen, Ardis, Mooney, Bowers, Hill and Perry.

A PRETTY WEDDING.
A pretty home wedding was solemnized last Wednesday at high noon, when Rev. W. A. Knighten united in marriage Delbert C. Hammill and Miss Eva B. Lewis. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, No. 622 South Spring street. The young couple standing under a floral bell beautifully formed of roses, carnations, ferns and snailax. The rooms were decorated throughout with flowers. After many warm congratulations, a bountiful dinner was served, and at 4:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Hammill left for Coronado. After August 5 they will be at home to their friends at No. 315 West Eighth street. Many handsome gifts were received.

A FAREWELL RECEPTION.

Mrs. W. A. Ransom and friends, on Tuesday evening, tendered a delightful reception to Mr. and Mrs. Gilhooley, at their residence in Rosedale.

The occasion was a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Gilhooley, who leave for Denver, August 1.

Messrs. White, Renno, Prof. Berra and Cooper kindly furnished music, and the farewell remarks were made by Castello in his usual eloquent manner.

The following are the names of those present:

Mr. and Mrs. Gilhooley, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ransom, Mr. and Mrs. D. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Green, Mr. and Mrs. McCracken, Mr. and Mrs. Radcliff, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Castello, Prof. and Mrs. Berra, Mrs. Kelly, Misses Nora, and Ada, Miss Clara Cooper, Sadie Bolander, Messrs. Myrick, Bohannon, White and Renno.

FAREWELL SOCIAL.

On Thursday evening next a children's social will be held at Unity Church, on which occasion there will be a fine musical programme, recitations, and a charming little Mother Goose party by small folks in appropriate costume. The social will be tendered as a farewell to Rev. and Mrs. Thomson, who are to leave the following Monday for a two months' trip, which embraces San Francisco, Salt Lake, Manitou, Chicago and Canada.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Little Madge Simkins, daughter of W. S. Simkins, of the City Engineer's office, entertained her small friends on Saturday, from 2 to 5 o'clock p.m., at being the fourth anniversary of her birth. She was the recipient of many pretty presents, among them a miniature baby-blue dresser and mirror, for her doll, and a willow penstand, with a scarlet parasol, "just like mamma's." The tiny hostess, a bright brunette, was daintily dressed in pink silk, a Christmas gift from an auntie in England. The decorations were bunches of papyrus grass, with drooping fringed and graceful little cups of orange lilies mingled with the green, while here and there gleamed the brilliant hibiscus, with our ever-blooming making the small cottage a floral bower.

OFF FOR HAWAII.

Miss Mary O. Paulding will leave on Wednesday for Honolulu, Hawaii, where she goes as a teacher in the native girls' seminary on the island. She will be accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Cuth, teacher of music, who goes to fill a position in the same seminary. Tomorrow evening the ladies of the Y.M.C.A. Auxiliary and the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church, of which latter both are members, will unite in tendering Miss Paulding and Miss Cuth a farewell reception at the Y.M.C.A. rooms. These especially interested in them as friends and missionaries will thus have the opportunity of wishing them Godspeed.

A SKETCHING PICNIC.

Next Saturday the art club of the Los Angeles School of Art and Design of this city, together with members now in attendance upon the art classes of the Chautauqua Assembly, will unite in a sketching picnic to Point Fermin. The plan is to go by train to Long Beach, where the Chautauqua class will be met and the trip made by carriage from there to the rocky point beyond San Pedro. Dinner will be served in picturesque style, the coaches will be retained during the day, and all who are interested in sketching are at liberty to join. Those who are not sketching artists are expected to serve the meal artistically.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

Dr. and Mrs. Ricknell and Miss Lena Bidwell are about leaving for Chicago and the East, and be absent several months.

Miss Ellen Beebe of Temple street will be off tomorrow for Redondo, to pass a week tenting on the beach.

Mrs. A. J. Page and family, Mrs. St. George and Miss Battelle have moved from Hill street into their new home, No. 327 West Twenty-third street.

The friends of Stanton Corps will hold a lawn social Tuesday evening at the residence of Mrs. C. F. Munson, No. 647 West Eighteenth street.

Dr. and Mrs. Robert W. Haynes and James S. Haynes have returned to the city.

Dr. Manning's family will occupy the Glassell cottage in South Santa Monica for the summer.

Miss Emma Reeder, assistant international secretary of the Y.M.C.A., has been passing the week at Long Beach, in attendance upon the Chautauqua Assembly, and will return tomorrow.

Miss Catherine Kimball of San Francisco, a favorite in Los Angeles society, is expected this week to pay a visit in the city.

Mrs. James Taylor has taken a cottage at Avalon for the season, and will occupy it with her son Russell and little daughter.

Mrs. M. G. Babcock and daughter Miss Mary, from Coronado Beach, are visiting the city, the guests of Mrs. Dr. Babcock.

Mrs. H. Simmons, Miss May Simmons and George P. Simmons returned yesterday from a two weeks' visit to San Francisco.

Lowinsky's orchestra will leave tomorrow to fill a summer engagement at the Hotel Rubloff. Mr. Lowinsky has recently passed several days at this mountain resort, and finds his health greatly improved by the change.

Miss Tessa A. Kelso of the Public Library writes from Chicago reporting a meeting of over three hundred librarians, including many from over the sea. She also states that such a stir has been created that an association of Western librarians is to be organized. Miss Kelso does not take any credit to herself for this movement, but her enthusiasm is too well known to leave a doubt as to who is the prime mover in the admirable project. She will leave on Tuesday for Los Angeles.

Miss Tina Kurtz is spending two weeks at Long Beach.

Miss Ethel Graham will sing "Santa Maria," by Fanny, tomorrow, in the Cathedral during the offertory.

J. Henry Morrissey returned Thursday, after a delightful visit of two months with friends and relatives at Minneapolis, Lake Minnetonka and at Chicago, where he took in the World's Fair.

Mrs. A. R. Walcott, the talented primary specialist, whose illustrated number work for children attracted so much attention at the Teachers' institute, is visiting friends in the city.

Master Phillip Goodwin, the young violinist, is attracting no little attention for one so young. He expects to study later with Odumokle in Boston.

Two society young ladies of Los Angeles will take a course in pharmacy this fall at Ann Arbor, where they will open a drug store in Santa Barbara.

Mrs. M. J. McDowell and two daughters arrived in the city Friday from Great Bend, Kan., and will remain some months. They are guests of Mrs. McDowell's brother, H. C. Walker of No. 502 Temple street.

BOARDING-HOUSES FOR PLANTS.

Specialty contributed to The Times.

A new and novel occupation for women—to open boarding-houses for plants.

Here is a field offering pleasant work and fair remuneration.

There is a growing demand for some one able and willing to take care of valuable plants and flowers during the owner's absence. A family goes abroad for the winter, or to the seaside for the summer, the house is closed or else left in the charge of servants who may not know an orchid from a cauliflower. What becomes of the rare lilies, the heliotropes, the fuchsias and other fragile beauties which have been so tenderly cared for by the ladies of the household? For one such family which can afford its private gardener there are a thousand which cannot. The need of a plant boarding-house is thus apparent.

A woman who has established such a temporary home for flowers near Central Park, and is making it an increasing source of profit. She began several seasons ago merely to accommodate a friend who had valuable chrysanthemums. Others asked her to take their flowers also, and soon she found herself at the head of a regular business. Now she has a full-fledged greenhouse, and will soon be obliged to make enlargements.

Visiting the curious establishment, I found it well filled with costly plants, among them a collection of chrysanthemums belonging to a wealthy New York woman traveling in Europe. She has a small fortune invested in flowers. There were chrysanthemums, geraniums, and camellias in cool rooms, and begonias, roses, smilax, heliotropes and fuchsias in hot rooms, and ferns and ivies in shaded rooms, and there was one room entirely filled with somebody's gorgeous orchids.

I learned that no system of flower insurance has yet been devised. If an orchid worth $1000 dies during its stay in the plant boarding-house the owner has no redress. By extra payment, however, it can be arranged that the flowers receive special foods and the greatest possible care.

The ordinary charge for a valuable plant per month is about $1.

However, I should judge that all the plants were made the subjects of special study; in fact, treated very much like so many children, for their feedings and airings and bathings and blanketings from the cold seemed as carefully apportioned as though they were human beings.

CEYLON SAXE

Stanford's Care for the Horse.

In employing men to work at Palo Alto, the late Senator gave them the most strict orders, says the San Francisco Examiner. They were told never to strike, kick or whip a horse, and his instructions to his men were: "Always do a thing a little better than anybody else, and you will succeed. When you handle a horse treat him a little better than any one else. When you breed a horse, breed him to a little better stock each time."

It was in this way that Stanford revolutionized the horse-breeding of the country. He never allowed one of his men to ill-use a horse, and they knew it. There are never noise or blows around the Palo Alto stables, and the horses are never frightened. To show his feeling toward his horses, the late Henry Vrooman once told of an occurrence when he was doing with Senator Stanford. Just after the dinner, one of the drivers insisted that he must see the Senator. He was ushered in, with blood over his face, which was badly cut. "John knocked me down," explained the man, referring to one of the trainers.

"What did you do?" asked the Senator.

"Nothing," replied the man.

"But you must have done something; I want the truth," persisted the Senator.

"I kicked a horse, and John knocked me down," said the man.

"Those were John's instructions, and I think he did just right," said the Senator.

Keep Away From Spring Street,
If You Want to Save Money

We are bound and determined to make Main street, and particularly the corner of Requena, the most popular place in Los Angeles. We are now, have been, and will continue to make it

The Most Attractive Spot

For clothing buyers in Southern California, and it will be to the moneyed interests of every resident of Los Angeles City and county to ponder well before they spend one Red Cent without consulting us. Cold type is not expressive enough to convey to your mind the fact that

We are in Dead Earnest,

—And that we mean just what we say when we shout
—About our great

SWEEPING OUT SALE.

A visit to our Mammoth, Palatial, Sunlit and on Saturday night gas and electric light flooded salesrooms, will convince any contemplative clothing buyer that we are going to RAISE THE DUST. We have the stock and it is a beauty, but we propose to place our beautiful stock upon the backs of satisfied customers instead of having it stacked on our beautiful tables or piled away in our lovely shelves.

We do Not Delude or Deceive,

And our great ambition is to serve the public with GENUINE BARGAINS. We quote the following percentage reductions and invite your inspection of the goods offered for sacrifice:

Straw Hats .....	50	per cent. reduction
Children's Suits .....	33 1/2	per cent. reduction
Boys' Suits (long pants) .....	33 1/2	per cent. reduction
Men's Odd Pants .....	33 1/2	per cent. reduction
Hats (other than straw) .....	25	per cent. reduction

And We Mean Just What We Dictate.

—Bring us a copy of this advertisement and we will pay
—You liberally for it.

In Our Men's Clothing Department

We make sweeping reductions, and you are invited to call and see our unequaled display and reap a benefit by our extremely low prices and generous reductions. Call and see us whether you buy or not. Come by the store anyway. It is one of the sights of the town; and we will treat you like an Infanta from Spain. We are after your custom and your cash.

Yours for nothing but bargains,
